"DOUBTLESS THE
Best Cough Medicine
IN THE WORLD."
[From one of the Oldest and very best Houses in America.]
Messrs. Cutler Bros. & Co. CINCINNATI, Ohio, March 13, 1873.
Please send us Ten gross small and Five gross large "Vegetable Pulmonary Balsam." This is doubtless the best Cough Medicine in the World. (Signed) ALLEN & CO.
P. S.—The parties have sold this Balsam for over thirty years.
[From one of Boston's most estimable citizens.] No. 5 Worcester Sq., BOSTON, March 14, 1873.
Messrs. Cutler Bros. & Co.
In ordering another small lot of your invaluable
Vegetable Pulmonary Balsam,
I should like to tell you what I know about it, in order that others may have the benefit of my EXPERIENCE.
Since this Balsam first came to my notice, in 1848, I have kept it constantly in the house, never allowing myself to be out of it overnight. In all these TWENTY-FIVE YEARS.
It has not failed in a single instance in my own case to give the desired relief, and I will say the same in regard to my mother, whose LIFE WAS SAVED
by it as I cannot but think. Hers was a case of Congestion of the Lungs, and although attended by a most skillful Physician, she seemed to fail constantly, so that we despaired of her recovery. When an old friend and neighbor persuaded her to try this Vegetable Pulmonary Balsam. The result was most gratifying, I assure you!
RELIEF WAS IMMEDIATE and recovery rapid. She is now over 80 years old, and is active and well. Whenever she gets a severe cold, which happens once in a while, she takes thirty to sixty drops, according to the violence of the cough, which has always yielded in a day or two by taking the Balsam only on retiring at night. With it the IRRITATION
is at once subdued, and a good night's sleep secured. I will mention another case, that of a young lady acquaintance, who
BLED AT THE LUNGS
and coughed frightfully, had night sweats and was fearfully reduced. She left Boston for her country home, 150 miles away, as we supposed to die. I sent her a bottle of your Balsam, and soon had the satisfaction to hear that she was much better. She continued taking it for a while and got ENTIRELY WELL,
and is living now, which fact is to be ascribed mainly to the use of the VEGETABLE PULMONARY BALSAM. Very truly yours, JOHN CAPEN.
As there are many imitations, be careful to get the genuine. Price in large bottles, which are much the cheaper, $1.00; small bottles, old style, 50 cents.

CLARION.
OUR NEW
Portable Cooking Range,
FOR WOOD OR COAL.
The Illuminated Clarion Range is one of the most Elegant and Economical, as we warrant it to be the most Compact and Convenient Cooking Apparatus ever produced.
The following are some of its Special Features: Illuminated Fire Box, Clinkerless Shaking and Dumping Grate, The best chance to Broil without odor, Large Ventilated Oven; With or without Hot Closet, Portable Shelf with Large Top Surface, The best Draft Cut-off ever invented; Reversible Collar, Pipe-top or Back, Dustless Sifter and large Ash Pan, Skeleton Grate in Hot Closet; Heat thrown under all its six holes, Water Front when ordered. It has Nickel Plated Knobs and is splendidly fitted up, is easily cleaned from the outside.
In connection with the above we would merely add, that in design and finish it is unsurpassed. It has an unusually large Oven, and extra deep Flues. The Covers and Centers are heavy, so preventing any warping. The Broiling Door is one of the most important features in modern stoves, and is so arranged in THE CLARION that broiling can be carried on successfully without any odor coming into the room. The Illuminated Fire Box presents a cheerful appearance, and shows at all times the condition of the fire without opening the door. The Skeleton Slide in Hot Closet bottom keeps any dish enveloped with warm air. The Sifter is vibrated by a handle through the front plate, and allows no dust to escape.
This Range has been thoroughly tested in every particular, and every disinterested person and dealers will admit it to be the best Cooking Range ever offered to the public. Please call and examine it and we can give you testimonials and references that will be satisfactory to you.

SWORN STATEMENT
OF A
BOSTON DRUGGIST
"GENTLEMEN: I hereby certify that I have had Catarrh for ten years, and for the last six years have been a terrible sufferer. I was rendered partially deaf, had buzzing in the head, pains across the temple, dizzy spells, weak and painful eyes, swollen and ulcerated tonsils, hard and constant cough, severe pains across the chest, and every indication of Consumption. My head ached all the time. The matter accumulated so rapidly in my head and throat that I could not keep them free. Frequently at night I would spring out of bed, it seemed to me at the point of suffocation. I would then have recourse to every means in my power to dislodge the mucous from my throat and head before being able to sleep again. For a period of six years my tonsils were ulcerated and so much inflamed that I could with difficulty swallow. I finally consulted an eminent surgeon in regard to an operation on them, but at his request postponed it. The constant inflammation and ulceration in my throat caused by the poisonous matter dropping down from my head had so irritated and inflamed my lungs that I coughed incessantly—a deep, hard cough. Meanwhile my system began to show the effects of this disease, so that I lost flesh, grew pale, and showed every symptom of an early death by Consumption. When matters had reached this stage, or about six months ago, I began the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH. After using the first bottle I began to improve rapidly. The first dose seemed to clear my head as I had not known it to be for years. It seemed gradually to arrest the discharges. It stopped my cough in three days. By using it as a gargle I soon reduced the inflammation and swelling of my tonsils, so that they soon ceased to trouble me. The soreness across my chest disappeared, the buzzing noises in my head ceased, my sense of hearing and of seeing were completely restored, and every symptom of a disease that had reduced me to the verge of the grave disappeared by the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH.
I have been thus explicit because, as a druggist, I have seen a great deal of suffering from Catarrh, and hope to convince many that this is a great remedy.
I am familiar with the treatment of Catarrh as practiced by the best physicians, and have consulted the most eminent about my case. I have used every kind of remedy and apparatus that have appeared during a period of six years past, and have, while following their use, taken great care of my general health, but obtained no relief or encouragement from any of them.
Since curing myself with SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE I have recommended it to over one hundred cases without a single case of failure, and have in numerous instances received wholesale orders from parties to whom I had sold one bottle. This is the only patent medicine I have ever recommended, never having believed in them before, although constantly engaged in their sale.
Very gratefully yours,
GEORGE F. DINSMORE,
With J. F. White, Druggist,
26 Portland, corner Sudbury street
Boston, February 23
SUFFOLK, ss. February 23, 1875.
Then personally appeared the said George F. Dinsmore and made oath that the foregoing statement by him subscribed is true. Before me,
(Signed) SETH J. THOMAS, Justice of the Peace

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE
Is a Local and Constitutional Remedy.
LOCALLY—Because it is applied directly to the seat of disease, the nasal passages, by insufflation, where it acts instantly clearing the head of mucous accumulations, allaying pain and soreness, subduing inflammation, and gradually drying up the discharge.
CONSTITUTIONALLY—Because it is taken internally, where by its alterative and resolvent properties it purifies the blood of the acid poison always present in Catarrh, keeps the pores open, the skin moist and healthy, gives tone to the nervous forces, improves the appetite, and enables the system, by its powerful tonic influence, to completely throw off the disease.
Each package contains a Treatise on Catarrh and Dr. Sanford's Improved Inhaling Tube. Price $1. For sale by Druggists everywhere. WEEKS & POTTER, Boston, General Agents.

NEW MAGAZINES.

THE GALAXY for May is bright, fresh and springlike, in keeping with the fairest month of the twelve. The prominent feature of this number is the space given to Biography, in which there are three most entertaining articles. The first of these, written by General Elie Reclus, so well known as an officer in the French Commune, sets forth the character of Louis II., the eccentric, not to say insane monarch who now rules over Bavaria. The second is a sketch of Salvator Rosa, one of the greatest of Italian painters, and the "Last of the Old Masters," and the third is an equally attractive sketch, by another hand, of another great painter, the beautiful and gifted Angelica Kauffman, in whose singular history so much interest has been awakened by recent articles in the English magazines. Miss Clive and I is the title of a charming story by an unknown contributor. An equally modest writer signs only her initials to a poem. There are poems by Bourdillon, the new English poet, John James Piatt, and Mrs. Mary B. Dodge. There are Linguistics by Richard Grant White. There are three serials, and finally, the usual quantum of political and society gossip, scientific and literary notes and Nebulæ.

LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE. The May number of this popular Monthly is very attractive. The opening paper (illustrated) is descriptive of a trip Up the Parana and in Paraguay. The author of Bluduits tells how Lady Louisa Moor amused herself. Mr. Edward Kearsley contributes a poem which is very remarkable for its vivid, descriptive poetic energy. There is a very interesting paper by Alexander Delmar on overworked women. Miss Lazarus furnishes some charming verses called Spring Joy. Of a totally different variety is a well-written paper on Frederic Lemaître, the French dramatist, of whom as the Dickens declared, that it was the finest he ever saw. Frank Vincent, Jr., contributes a valuable paper styled Northward to High Asia. Behind their Fans is an amusing sketch. Mr. Black's story, Three Feathers, reaches a climax, but only the beginning of "What ... it" appears in this number. There are other papers of special interest. The Monthly Gossip, as ever, is very entertaining, and, altogether, the May number is unusually enjoyable. J. B. Lippincott & Co., Publishers, 715 and 717 Market Street, Philadelphia.

ST. NICHOLAS. As readers are aware Messrs. Scribner & Co., sometime ago, purchased "Our Young Folks" and "The Riverside," of Boston, the most prominent publications for boys and girls in the New England States, and "The Children's Hour" of Philadelphia, the favorite magazine among the little ones of the Middle States, now they announce the purchase of "The Little Corporal" and "The School Day Magazine" which have also been consolidated with ST. NICHOLAS, giving it a National circulation. As a magazine for young people ST. NICHOLAS stands unsurpassed by anything of the kind yet published. It is always filled with the choicest matter, is finely and profusely illustrated, and is just what the boys and girls want. The May number contains the full complement of fun, illustrations, stories, poetry, etc., and will afford its young readers both amusement and instruction. Published by Scribner & Co., 743 and 745 Broadway, N. Y.

THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY. In the May number readers will find the following matters of interest. Henry W. Longfellow opens the number with an exquisite poem, Amalfi, and John G. Whittier writes a centennial poem for Lexington, 1875. There are also characteristic poems by James Russell Lowell, Sonnet, to F. A. T. B. Aldrich: The Pine and the Walnut. J. W. DeForest, The Fastidious Goblin. Mark Twain, in Old Times on the Mississippi, tells about "Sounding" Faculties peculiarly necessary to a pilot. William M. Baker gives some racy sketches of Southwestern character in Merely a Mirror. Celia Thaxter has a graphic account of A Memorable Murder at the Isles of Shoals. S. J. Barrows contributes a droll paper on The Northwestern Mule and his Driver. F. B. Sanborn continues The Virginia Campaign of John Brown. An anonymous writer asks and answers the question, What is an American? Henry James, Jr., gives Chapter V. (Christina) of Roderick Hudson. W. D. Howells has a critical paper on Alfieri, and there are sixteen Reviews of Books, besides careful editorial notes on Art, Music, and Education. H. O. Houghton & Co., Boston, Hurd & Houghton, New York, Publishers.

SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY. The May number opens with Gilbert Stuart's threefold portrait of Madame Patterson-Bonaparte, of Baltimore, one of the most conspicuous victims of the great Napoleon's selfish and unscrupulous ambition. The accompanying sketch of "The Baltimore Bonapartes" is an authentic history of this interesting family, which may yet give France its Emperor. The New Paris Opera-House is described, with pen and picture. "Droogmakerij" is the title of Col. Waring's carefully prepared account of the drainage of Haarlem Lake. Dr. Wm. Hayes Ward, of the Independent, sums up, in an illustrated paper, some of the curious discoveries that have recently been made in ancient Assyrian literature. Some Recent Women Poets is the title of a brief, but thoughtful critical paper; some of these very women poets have new poems in the same number, by the way. Yung Wing and His Work tells about the Chinese Educational Mission, and its devoted originator. In the way of fiction we have two chapters of Dr. Holland's Story of Sevenoaks (in which there is more about Jim Fenton, and a new character is introduced); more of that exceedingly Mysterious Island, by Jules Verne; an Electro-Mechanical romance, by Charles Barnard, that is original in several features, and another story by the young New Orleans story-writer, George W. Cable. Some Old Letters (these are genuine and a later installment will be accompanied by facsimiles), and Both sides of the Shield, by Mrs. Davis, are the other prose contributions. Scribner & Co., New York, Publishers.

THE SCIENCE OF HEALTH for May contains a Sanitarium for May, The Irrepressible Conflict; The Treatment of Sick People; What I know of Doctoring; Popular Physiology, with Illustrations; The Price of Health; Doctors and Nurses; The Use of Rye, with Seasonable Recipes, Practical Hints in the Household Department; Use of Drug Stores. A Veracious Boy, Patent Medicines, Gospel of Truth, etc. S. R. Wells, Publisher, 737 Broadway, N. Y.

In a carefully prepared statistical paper on the Errors of Modern Civilization, THE REPUBLIC MAGAZINE for April, published at Washington, shows that the Great Powers are carrying larger armies to-day than at any former period in the world's history. It is also shown that as a direct result of war and standing armies national indebtedness has increased far beyond that of any former period. Ten governments, namely France, Great Britain, United States, Italy, Spain, Austria, Russia, Germany, Turkey, and India, owe twenty thousand million dollars. The number is replete with political information. Published by the Republic Publishing Co., Washington, D. C.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK, which is deservedly a favorite with the ladies, well maintains its popularity. The May number is full of choice reading matter, which will furnish entertainment for leisure hours, and the usual amount of designs, etc., which always prove of interest to ladies. The fashion plates are elegant and the number is altogether as bright as a May morning. L. A. Godey, Publisher, Philadelphia.

The Eleventh Number of HARKNESS' MAGAZINE presents a large amount of reading matter from the pens of authors already well known to magazine readers. All readers will find matters of interest in it. John C. Harkness, Wilmington, Del., Publisher.

PENOBSCOT FARMER'S CLUB.

An Interesting and Profitable Discussion of "Wheat Culture in Maine."

The Penobscot County Farmer's Club met at the Fuller School House, on Saturday, April 10th, President Luce in the chair. In opening the discussion he said the subject of wheat culture was of less importance to him than the production of hay and provender. To a certain extent the cultivation of wheat interests the farmers of Maine, as this is the best grain to seed with, he usually obtains the largest returns, also, from his wheat crop, but this is partially explained by the fact that he usually takes his best land for this cereal.

Mr. Burr enquired in what respect wheat is the best grain for seeding down.

Mr. Luce thought it because it shaded the ground the best, and took less from the land.

J. R. Farrington, Farm Superintendent at the Agricultural College, said his father claimed that the best "catch" was obtained by a mixture of wheat and grass seed. Mr. Farrington said he had experimented with drilling and sowing broadcast. In broadcasting he had raised just as much more to the acre as it took more seed, that is, in sowing broadcast he had used two bushels to the acre, and with the drill one bushel of seed to the acre. The portion sown broadcast produced just one bushel more per acre than that on which the drill was used. With the drill the wheat is evenly covered, grows more evenly and looks better during the summer, and ripens more evenly and quicker than that broadcasted. His drilled wheat was sown a week later than the other, but ripened at the same time, and more satisfactorily in other respects. In sowing winter wheat in October a portion was left on the surface, and other portions at the various depths of two, four, and seven inches, that at the depth of two inches did much the best. In another experiment as to depth, he seeded from one to four inches in depth; the wheat germinated equally well, but that sowed the deepest grew and yielded the best. The speaker had read of Mr. Smith, an English farmer, who claims to have increased the yield of land from 14 to 30 bushels of wheat to the acre, without manure, by simply drilling and careful cultivation.

In response to a question on that point, Mr. Farrington said he thought less seed was required for drilling than for broadcasting, but to settle all questions as to quantity, depth, and the best time to sow, would require many additional experiments. These would involve outlays of time and money, but the farmers of Maine should insist upon their being done.

A. Leighton said he had not much experience in wheat raising, but in another week he should sow some seed, and next fall would give the Club the benefit of his experiment.

R. H. Hunt considers wheat the most important grain crop, and thinks it profitable to raise for feeding to stock.

A member said he sowed two acres two years ago, from which he raised 36 bushels. Last spring he sowed six acres, which yielded 150 bushels. The average yield of wheat per acre in Maine, as published in the reports, is 14 bushels, but in this section of the State the average production is much larger. Peter C. Baker raised one year 58 bushels to the acre.

A. Leighton said that last year he raised 10 bushels on one-half an acre, from which better flour has been made than any he can buy. But if wheat is to be raised as an investment the farmers of Maine must use something besides the old-fashioned, spike-tooth harrow, which packs the land instead of lightening it.

Mr. Griffin had made three experiments with Lost Nation Wheat; one piece was sowed the first of May, another the last of May, and the other the 10th of June,—the latter producing much the best. He used to think light land the best for wheat, but has found that it does best on clayey soil.

The Club adjourned to meet on Saturday next, April 24, at 10 o'clock A. M., in the Fuller School-house, at which the following question will be discussed: "Is special farming or mixed husbandry best adapted to the farmers of Penobscot County?"

On Saturday, May 8th, at 10 o'clock A. M., the Club will meet in Temperance Hall, Bangor, to discuss this question: "Resolved, That the Agricultural College is worthy the support and earnest co-operation of the farmers of Maine."

STATE NEWS.

Androscoggin.

The Lewiston Journal says that it costs $160 to take down the vane from the City Building spire. The job is done by Geo. Loring, of Portland, and Jeff E. Coburn, of that city. They have completed the staging and have apparatus ready to remove the vane.

The April term of the S. J. Court, which will open at Auburn next Tuesday, promises several important cases. The case against the treasurer of Cumberland county, and the case against Briant, late liquor agent of Lewiston, who are charged with embezzlement, are two cases which will probably be put on trial.

The ice in the Androscoggin still holds above Lewiston.

The street commissioner's salary in Auburn is $800 this year.

Addison Small has resigned his position as Superintendent of schools in Auburn, but the Aldermen want him to abide until June.

Mentioning tramps the Lewiston Journal says: Homeless tramps from all parts of the country stop at city station almost every night. Many of them come from Portland. Fifty-nine lodgers have appeared at city station since April 1st. They are floating about the country in quest of work. Probably some of them are good men, but the majority prove to be saucy, cheeky, impudent bummers.

Cumberland.

John Marsten's house at Libby's Corner, with most of the furniture was burned Tuesday night. Loss $1200.

Hancock.

ELLSWORTH.—The S. J. Court, Judge Peters presiding, has been in session since the 13th inst. Lots of rumsellers have been indicted by the grand jury.—A spelling match under the auspices of the Emerald Band was held at Hancock Hall, on Saturday evening last. The prizes were taken by Richard McGown, Capt. A. K. Woodward and John A. Hale.—The members of the Woman's Aid Society have challenged the members of the Reform Club for a spelling match on Friday evening next. The interest in temperance matters unabated. Enthusiastic meetings continue to be held weekly. On Sunday evening last M. C. Lamprey, teacher of the High School, gave a temperance lecture at Hancock Hall.

Kennebec.

The county commissioners not being able to contract the labor of the prisoners in the Kennebec jail, at a meeting Tuesday, decided to fit up and start the workshop at once in the manufacture of thick boots and brogans.

The steam mill of the Kennebec Land & Lumber Co., at Augusta, will commence operations next Monday.

The Kennebec Journal says, Toby Candor has let her up, in his hot bed, and is now sprouting his bean poles. It is his opinion that we are to have a bad season for dried apples.

A new passenger and freight station is to be erected in Hallowell, by the Maine Central R. R. Co., at an early day. The structure will be of brick, and of spacious and tasty proportions.

Oxford.

The clothing store of E. C. Allen, in Norway village, was broken into on Saturday night and about $250 worth of goods were stolen. The robbery was discovered Sunday morning, but no clew of them has yet been found.

The teacher of the Norway High School says that the young lady taking the first prize in the spelling match was a scholar of the High School as well as a temporary operator in the shoe shop. All the better.

Piscataquis.

The enterprising citizens of Abbott village are moving to secure the building of a road and bridge across the Piscataquis River at their village that will connect them with the European and North American Railroad. The County Commissioners will view the route in the month of May next, and the town will vote on the question of building it some time in June.—When it is built a depot will be erected there by the railroad company, and then this will be a very central point for business.

Sagadahoc.

The Washingtonian Reform Club held a mass temperance meeting at the F. W. B. church, Richmond, on last Sunday evening. Long before seven o'clock, the house was thronged to almost suffocation by an immense audience, and the meeting was very enthusiastic. The Club now numbers eighty-five members.

Somerset.

There is to be a new hotel at Harmony, to be called the Evans House.——Some trouble with the liquor agent's accounts.

The corporators of the Norridgewock Savings Bank are taking measures to put the bank in operation at an early day. At an adjourned meeting of the corporators on the 17th, S. D. Lindsey, J. W. Hathaway, Wm. Taylor, H. F. Eaton and Edward Rowe were elected trustees.

Waldo.

The barn of Andrew McCobb at Lincolnville was destroyed by fire, Thursday, and a horse, cow, five tons of hay, carriage and farming tools burned.

Washington.

Dr. William Caldwell, of Calais, was arrested in that city for a small debt and committed to the jail at Machias. He notified the creditor and took the poor debtor's oath on the sixth day of this month. He disclosed jewelry and money, which with the expenses of the disclosure, would have more than paid the debt, besides lying in jail more than a week.

The Republican says there is now living in East Machias, a child who has two parents, two grandfathers, two grandmothers, two great-grandfathers, two great-grandmothers, and one great-great-grandmother, all living within the limits of the town, the latter being but seventy-two years of age.

The Machias Republican says that the new brig Mary Bartlett, built by Messrs. Holway, of that place last season, Capt. A. B. Thompson, sailed from Sagua Cuba, March 12th, arrived at Philadelphia March 22d, discharged full cargo, ballasted and sailed March 27th, and, arrived at Sagua April 5th,—making the round trip in 24 days. Quick work.

York.

The Times says that city hall, Saco, was crowded Sunday evening to listen to temperance speeches. The meeting proved one of great interest. Remarks were made by President Chadbourn, L. H. Foss, F. W. Gubtill, George R. Boothby, Joseph Chappel, Michael Tyne, Rev. Mr. Wetherbee, Rev. Mr. Blanchard and Mamie Smith.

EMBLEMS IN HERALDRY.

The fleur-de-lis is the lily of heraldry. The lion, the king of beasts, was a favorite symbol. It was used by all who were in any way related to the king, and kings bestowed it upon their chosen followers. Among birds, the eagle was most esteemed, and of fishes, the dolphin.

In the time of the Crusades, when so many soldiers of different nations were assembled together, more emblems were needed. Every soldier who went to the Holy War wore the badge of the cross upon the right shoulder. And they added to their emblems the crescent, the scallop, the turban, and other devices. There were many kinds of crosses. The Cross of St. George, the Cross of St. Andrew, the Cross of Malta, the Cross-crosslet, and many others. The Cross-crosslet was often fitched, or pointed, at the lower part. It was carried by pilgrims on their journeys, and could be fixed in the ground so that they might perform their devotions by the wayside.

As coats-of-arms became more numerous, different knights took the same devices, and the different coats-of-arms came to be so much alike that it made confusion. Then strict laws were made, regulating the attitudes of the animals and the number and position of the charges. For example, one knight might display upon his shield a lion rampant, that is, standing up ready for combat—the most honorable position for the lion. On another there might be a lion guardant, that is, with the face turned frontwise looking round to observe the enemy; or regardant, having the head turned backward, as if urging on his followers, or passant, walking cautiously, as though searching for the enemy.—From "About Heraldry," by Annie Moore, St. Nicholas for May.

A Self-Advertising Remedy.
There are certain proprietary articles that advertise themselves. Among these are Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It may be truly said of this celebrated remedy for disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, and antidote to malaria, that the contents of every bottle is an advertisement, since its good effects are distinctly and promptly evinced. ... This is particularly true in rural neighborhoods invaded by chills and fever, and other types of malaria, for which it is a recognized specific. Such disorders being ..., the question, "What is the best remedy and safeguard?" naturally presents itself to everybody in that vicinity, and is made the subject of general inquiry. A family benefited by the Bitters communicates the fact to their neighbors, who in turn become patrons of the great remedy, and proclaim its effects. This explains why it has become the most popular of American household medicines, and why its popularity is continually on the increase. apr23 d&w

ALL HAIL TO THE STARS AND STRIPES

[From the N Y Evening Post]

In the centennial jubilee let us not forget that the 19th of April is a double anniversary—of the first blood shed in the war for liberty and Union as well as the first blood shed in the war for Independence. Mr Curtis does well in his eloquent address at Concord to remind his hearers [illegible] times which we commemorate On the 12th of April 1861 the traitors opened fire upon Fort Sumter Three days after the President called upon the Governors of the loyal States for troops to defend the Federal Capital On the 17th of April the Sixth Massachusetts Regiment [illegible] county of Middlesex [illegible] for Washington On the 19th [illegible] this city [illegible]

[illegible]

All hail to the stars and stripes

We have repeated this [illegible]

[illegible]

The garrison at Fort Sumter on the 14th of April while they retired the [illegible] garrison announced to Anderson and his [illegible] into the noble army of heroes of American history [illegible] the garrison of the fort, as they saluted the American flag, when the vanquished garrison—unconquerable in heart—retired from the scene, saluted the immortal Stripes and Stars floating out in [illegible] shouts and the joyful tears of twenty millions of freemen

Oh what a glorious morning was the exulting cry of Samuel Adams as he [illegible] the musketry which on the dawn of the 19th of April 1775 announced the beginning of the war of Independence The yeomanry who in 1775 on Lexington Common and on the banks of Concord River first made that day immortal in our annals found their lineal representatives in the historic regiment which on the 19th of April 1861 in the streets of Baltimore baptized our flag anew in their blood when Massachusetts marched once more in the sacred cause of liberty and the rights of mankind

Henceforth be silent, ye shallow cavillers at New England thrift economy and peaceful toil! Henceforth let no one dare accuse our northern sky our icy winters or our granite hills!

Our impression is that the persistent efforts of the editor of the Commercial to open a personal correspondence with Rev Dr Field will meet with poor success That gentleman has made a statement to the public which will be supplemented by convincing evidence whenever he may deem it requisite The sweeping general denial in last evening's paper covers altogether too much ground to be effective, as a portion of the charges are not susceptible of dispute That two reports of Dr Field's sermon were published, one in the Commercial and another in the Herald, one of them tolerably correct and the other scandalously false, is a fact of record, and it is equally well known that both of those reports emanated from the editorial staff of the Commercial Is Mr Emery ready to make an unequivocal denial that he dictated or furnished the statements telegraphed to the Herald? That is the present question

The two days' session of the Grand Lodge of Good Templars in this city was largely attended, and the proceedings seem to have been characterized throughout by harmony and moderation The reports of the various officers gave evidence of the flourishing condition of the Order and the delegates from different sections bore testimony of the strength of the temperance revival during the past year in all parts of the State The disposition of members [illegible] to avoid the champion [illegible] of rash or extreme measures and to [illegible] already provided for its advancement and in strengthening public sentiment in its behalf A reference to our report of the proceedings will show that these prominent advocates of the prohibitory system recognize the [illegible] and hostile character of the [illegible] the [illegible] three Democratic members of the Board of Aldermen voted to abolish the Agency [illegible]

A BRITON'S RESPONSE

[illegible] Gladstone late Prime Minister of Great Britain [illegible]

LONDON March 1875

Gentlemen [illegible]

The circumstances [illegible]

With these views I do not say [illegible] the approaching celebration [illegible] It is entirely beyond my power to cross the sea even [illegible] the present [illegible] to be for me even [illegible] which I am at liberty to put aside But I earnestly hope and I cannot doubt that the celebration will be worthy of the occasion

In a retrospective view of the eventful period my countrymen can now contemplate its incidents with impartiality I do think they should severely blame their ancestors whose struggle to maintain the unity of the British empire is one that must I think after the late great war of the North and South, be viewed in America with some sympathy and indulgence We can hardly be expected to rate very highly the motives of the European powers who threw their weight into the other scale and who so sensibly contributed towards accelerating the issue of the war, yet for one I can most truly say that whatever the motives and however painful the process they while seeking to do an injury, conferred upon us a great benefit by releasing us from efforts the continuation of which would have been an unmixed evil As regards the fathers of the American Constitution themselves I believe we can and do now contemplate their great qualities and achievements with an admiration as pure as that of American citizens themselves and can rejoice no less heartily that in the counsels of Providence they were made the instruments of a purpose most beneficial to the world

The circumstances under which the United States began their national existence and their unexampled rapidity of advance in wealth, population, enterprise and power, have imposed on their people an enormous responsibility They will be tried, as we shall, at the bar of history, but on a greater scale They will be compared with the men not only of other countries but of other times They cannot escape from the liabilities and burdens which their greatness imposes

No one desires more fervently than I do that they may be enabled to realize the highest hopes and anticipations that belong to their great position in the family of man

I have the honor to be, gentlemen, your obliged and faithful servant,

W. E. GLADSTONE.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

THE BROOKLYN TRIAL

Mr. Beecher Leaves the Stand.

A New Witness Introduced

In the Court Room Wednesday

BROOKLYN, April 21 The Brooklyn City Court presented very much the same aspect it has ever since Beecher's cross-examination commenced The [illegible] in all the court [illegible] the room was so well packed that when the audience rose at recess it was [illegible] difficult to get out as it was before to get in Mr Evarts was the first of the counsel to arrive He saluted the jury, and the latter humorously inquired [illegible] to the foreman who was sitting in the jury box if counsel could go [illegible] Mr [illegible] the court [illegible] Quite a [illegible] of friends and friends accompanied Beecher to court He took a [illegible] and was passed up to the [illegible] [illegible] to present [illegible]

Interviews with Woodhull

The cross-examination was resumed by Mr Fullerton at 11 o'clock

Witness said he first saw Victoria Woodhull in June 1872 at Tilton's house [illegible] thinks [illegible] World [illegible] It was at [illegible] interview [illegible] was in October [Letter handed [illegible]] Counsel read the letter to [illegible] from Woodhull November [illegible] asking for an interview the next day [illegible] forthcoming [illegible] Hall Witness said he did not [illegible] He handed it to Moulton saying that he did not want to see Woodhull and Moulton took the matter [illegible] Woodhull [illegible] he had a letter [illegible] He was then in the house [illegible] He had an interview with [illegible] He [illegible] about half an hour [illegible] After that [illegible] Moulton and Tilton [illegible] [The letter of the 19th of September from Woodhull to Beecher [illegible] witness and identified] [illegible] Woodhull's letter [illegible] Mrs Stanton [illegible] Witness said his impression [illegible] he answered that [illegible] Moulton before he got it

Consultation with Moulton

[The letter of Beecher of January 1872, to Moulton, asking his [illegible] about the [illegible] Woodhull was read by Fullerton] Witness said he did [illegible] at this [illegible] He asked [illegible] He called that consultation [illegible] It is a play upon words, to make a [illegible] consultation and [illegible] He wrote that letter to Moulton for the publication of the Woodhull [illegible] letter [illegible] He cannot recall this [illegible] The letter of Woodhull was a matter for consideration [illegible] him to promise a special idea [illegible] by Gen'l Butler on woman suffrage. [illegible] that matter might have some relation to the [illegible] Moulton thought it would be a good thing for him to go Witness does [illegible] that Moulton said it would be a good thing as he would have an opportunity of gaining the good will of that woman

Conversations with Mrs Moulton

When speaking to Mrs Moulton about Mrs Woodhull he spoke of Mrs Woodhull as a rough diamond perhaps extravagantly [illegible] by Moulton and that he did not think Woodhull's association with Mrs Moulton should injure her He told Woodhull he was not apprised of all her views and as far as informed he was not in accord with her He did not remember [illegible] he loathed and abhorred them but [illegible] He did not tell Mrs Moulton his opinion of Woodhull's theories [illegible] that was not in question She only asked his opinion about associating with Woodhull as Moulton wished her to do, and he said he thought Woodhull [illegible] Mrs Moulton did not tell him her object in becoming acquainted with Woodhull was to control her and prevent her publishing the scandal

The letter of Beecher in reply to Woodhull's last letter was read by Fullerton. It was January 1st, 1872 and states that he was engaged for other meetings, generally approves of the Woman's Rights movement and predicts its ultimate success.

Witness—That was after the Steinway Hall meeting My impression is that the letter was longer but I don't think Moulton [illegible] anything from it

The Final Point of the Cross-Examination

The next point taken up was with reference to Mr Beecher's health and the expressions in his letter relative to a sudden death Witness explained that he had fears of apoplexy at that time, and gave at length the reasons for so thinking He stated in reply to questions that his life has been insured for the benefit of others, but not since 1870

Counsel here produced applications for life insurance in March, 1871 Witness said the application was not made by him, but by Ford & Co He does not recollect going through an examination, but he recollects three insurances on his life—one was very early, about 1850, then one about 1860 When getting these insurances he did not state his symptoms of apoplexy.

Evarts here remarked that these insurances were, by others on Beecher's life, and not by application from Beecher He attached no importance to the matter but asked whether the paper, [application for policy,] was admissible

The court decided the witness might be examined as to his statements in that paper [illegible]

The counsel read the questions and answers on the application for insurance in which the answer "No" is given to the question whether the party is afflicted with any disease or disorder and that he ordinarily enjoys good health. The notification from the company was also read that the agent should find out whether there was anything in the party's past life why the New Jersey Mutual Company should not insure

The Re-Direct Examination.

This closed the cross-examination at 12 30 Evarts then stated that the redirect examination would not last longer than half an hour, and the next witness would be Cleveland, who would only occupy five minutes On the redirect examination Evarts took up the insurance paper. He read the examining physician's answers as to Beecher's state of health, which were satisfactory, and to the effect that Beecher's organs were all sound and that he had no predisposition to constitutional disease — Beecher's signature is under date of New York, March 17th 1874 The witness said [illegible] interest whatever in this [illegible] "His Life of Christ" he presumes was in their minds when they state they have an insurable interest in him They are his publishers and are interested as such in his future life and labors There was a period when the slight symptoms developed during reaction [illegible] and despondent times were those of apoplexy, and besides he has a short neck and his friends tell him when he gets red in the face he is likely to go but he found out afterwards that these symptoms were from nervous exhaustion [illegible] depression [illegible]

He recollects there was not a sister of his keeping house for him in the winter of 1870 while Mrs Beecher was in Florida Mary Cook regulated the house under the direction of Mrs Beecher by letters from Florida Evarts here produced a slip of [illegible] which Beecher gave his wife as [illegible] the separation of Mrs Tilton from her husband The first clause "I am inclined to your view that a [illegible] and settlement of support would be best" Has already been put in by the prosecution Evarts now put in the remaining clause "In his (Tilton's) desperate state his wife's presence would be more likely to produce hatred than her absence."

Witness said he had no other retraction from Mrs Tilton but the one in evidence He returned to her her husband's [illegible]

The question whether she [illegible] alleged [illegible] was objected to by Fullerton on the ground that the interview of the defendant and Mrs Tilton on December 30 had been examined into and it couldn't now be given Witness said he received no ordinal [illegible] of the engagement of affection Mr Evarts said the reason for asking was that it is in evidence that Beecher said he had made [illegible] written denial of improper advances and [illegible] to cover up the affection Witness said he received from sixteen to twenty two letters [illegible] absence

Judge—I have received quite as many anonymous letters about this trial

Witness explained that the anonymous letters were thrown into the fire He took little participation in the business of the church and hardly ever looked at the record He has attended few important meetings He did not attend any meeting of the examining committee in an executive or judicial capacity and told them he [illegible] He did not read the investigation committee's report last summer He read none of the scandal documents He heard the report was satisfactory and that was enough When he first came to Brooklyn he paid attention to things said about him but after a few years ceased to read either praise or the reverse He never [illegible] story about himself for a year [illegible] nothing else [illegible]

Close of the Re-Direct Testimony

Witness further examined [illegible] connected with the Woodhull publication and payments to Moulton for Tilton One of the jury suggested the question whether in making the mortgage on his house Mr Beecher joined in the mortgage

Witness promptly answered He told her it was a business operation [Witness and all his friends appeared delighted at the question and whispered exclamation [illegible] heard from different parts of the House Mrs Beecher laughed [illegible]]

The re-direct closed at 1 20 [illegible] took a recess

A Curious Slip of Paper

After recess Samuel White Partridge was put on the stand He was a clerk for Woodruff & Robinson from 1849 to last December In 1872 he recollects a check of B went for $7 000 for deposit A slip of paper came with it and it has been since in his possession The slip after a long argument [illegible] was read It is as follows

"Spoils from a new friend for enrichment of all"

He further testified to tendering on the [illegible] a check [illegible] Moulton's order [illegible] drawing it charging them paid to [illegible] Adjourned

THE INDIANS

Trouble Anticipated

ST LOUIS April 21 A special from Kansas City says it is understood that the Indians who escaped from the Cheyenne Agency on the 6th inst are on the [illegible] 10 miles south of Fort Dodge [illegible] It is supposed they have formed a junction with one or more of the bands that [illegible] The whole force is probably about 600 They are evidently intent on fighting All the available troops at Fort Dodge and Fort Hays have been ordered out after them with instructions to gather them in if it takes all summer Troops are also moving up from the south to engage them The military are confident they cannot escape a collision with one or other of the forces marching against them

Second and Last Day of the Session of the Grand Lodge at Music Hall

FORENOON

Yesterday the weather was much pleasanter than on the previous day but the attendance upon the session of the Grand Lodge of Good Templars was not as large as on the day [illegible] the maximum number having been present on Tuesday Precisely at [illegible] the meeting was called to order by Hon Joshua Nye G W C T of the State and prayer having been offered by the Chaplain Rev D B Randall the Lodge proceeded with the business of the day

Several unimportant reports of committees were presented and the Lodge then proceeded to take up items in the report of the Committee on Appropriations After a slight discussion upon several of the items the report was finally adopted and the following appropriations were announced for expenses of the Grand Lodge for the coming year

Grand Worthy Secretary	$600
Grand Worthy Treasurer	50
[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible] expenses and postage	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]
Total	[illegible]

At the 10 o'clock hour having arrived the election of officers that was declared the order of business and the Committee on Credentials reported that there were 133 persons in the hall entitled to vote for officers of the Grand Lodge for the ensuing year Messrs Nash Payson and Hemenway were appointed to receive sort and count the votes It was decided that the first ballot should be an informal one for Grand Worthy Chief Templar and the following result was declared

Whole number of votes cast	130
Necessary for a choice	66
H M Bryant of Lewiston had	[illegible]
H A Shorey of Bridgton had	56
Allen Baker of Gardiner had	[illegible]

Mr Baker withdrew his name and the formal ballot was taken with the following result

Whole number of votes cast	134
Necessary for a choice	68
H M Bryant	[illegible]
H A Shorey	82

And H A Shorey was declared elected Grand Worthy Chief Templar of the State of Maine for the year ending April 21 1876

Mr Bryant stated that if he could not be the successful general at the head of this noble army he was going to shoulder his musket and be a good private He moved that the election be declared unanimous which was adopted

Major Shorey, the successful candidate is editor of the Bridgton News and a prominent temperance worker

Two or more candidates were presented for each of the offices, but the only one which occasioned much canvassing was that of Grand Worthy Secretary An informal ballot was first taken to show the preference of the Lodge, and afterward a formal ballot was thrown, as follows

Whole number of votes cast	138
Necessary for a choice	70
Charles F Swett Portland	[illegible]
C F Littlefield Rockland	[illegible]
M G Prentiss Bangor	7
J L Cass Bangor	5
George E Brackett, Belfast	94

One of the members asked how it was that 138 votes were thrown for Grand Worthy Secretary, when there were only 133 qualified voters present The chairman of the Committee on Credentials replied that six delegates had made their appearance since the vote for Grand Worthy Chief Templar

On motion, the election of George E Brackett as Grand Worthy Secretary was declared unanimous

At 12 o'clock the elections had not been completed, and the time of closing was extended half an hour. At half past 12 the full list of officers was declared elected as follows

G W C T, H A Shorey, Bridgton.
G W C, O V Crossman, Bangor.
G W V T, Mrs. John Work, Bangor.
G W S, George E Brackett, Belfast.
G W T, George G. Payson, Rockland
G W Chaplain, Rev. George E. Palmer Portland
G W M, Charles A Maxwell, Portland.
G W D M, Mrs George E Brackett, Belfast.
G W I G, Walter Keene, Lewiston.
G W O G, F. A. Forbes, Brooks
Superintendent Juvenile Templars, Rev. O. W. Cousens, Kennebunk

Considerable discussion was provoked in the election to the last-named office. The Juvenile Templars are required to subscribe to a triple pledge to abstain from the use of alcoholic liquor, tobacco and profanity One of the candidates for the office of Superintendent is known to use tobacco, and it was well said that he ought not to aspire to the position of superintendent of an anti-tobacco society. Rev O M Cousens, the successful candidate, has held the office for some time, and is well suited to the position

Adjourned at 12.30 until 2 P M

At 1.30 the Committee on Appeals held a session in the ante-room, and the committee on place of meeting for next session received proposals in the large hall

AFTERNOON

The Lodge came to order at 2 P M and the election of delegates to the Right Worthy Grand Lodge, which meets at Bloomington Ill, the fourth Tuesday in May was announced as the first regular business A committee was appointed to receive sort and count votes for each delegate separately The committee attended to their duty and the following delegates were declared elected

Fred N Dow D B Randall, W O Fuller W F Morrell

Mr Dow is a son of Neil Dow of Portland, Mr Randall is a prominent Methodist clergyman, of Cape Elizabeth and Past Chaplain of the Grand Lodge, Mr Morrell is Past Grand Worthy Secretary and Mr Fuller is a prominent member of the Order in Rockland

A committee appointed for the purpose presented the names of the following members as alternates to the Right Worthy Grand Lodge and they were unanimously elected by acclamation

Rev O M Cousens Kennebunk Mrs A M Burnham, Portland, M G Prentiss Bangor I P Call, Kittery

The communication with regard to the National Temperance Convention at Chicago in June which was tabled yesterday was then taken up and the following delegates were elected to that Convention Fred N Dow D B Randall W O Fuller W F Morrell O M Cousens Mrs A M Burnham M G Prentiss

The leisure time between the reports of the committee appointed to receive sort and count the votes for delegates to the Right Worthy Grand Lodge was occupied with discussions in regard to the abolition of City and State Liquor Agencies The prevailing sentiment as expressed [illegible] by the most prominent members of the Lodge seemed to be that liquor agencies were a positive necessity to the proper enforcement of the prohibitory law

Hon Joshua Nye favored the retention of the Agencies Mr Storey said the Governor had recently appointed as State Agent B C Stone of Bridgton whom he knew to be a pure man and a man who would withstand the temptations of the State Agency If a movement is made to abolish liquor agencies prohibition will be found to be up hill business There are a good many in this State who think they must have liquors for medicinal purposes and the agency must be retained for that purpose We must direct our efforts to making the proper restrictions around our agencies He would be glad if public sentiment would allow the abolition of agencies but it would not

Mr Chase of Portland said the Portland Agency had brought disgrace upon the [illegible] system He objected to the State Agent taking a reward politician as partner He did not think our agency for the sale of liquor for medicinal and mechanical purposes ought to be made a place of profit

Mr Fred N Dow of Portland thought it didn't make any difference whom the State Agent took as a partner or where he got his money as long as he attended to his duty

Mr Chase [illegible] know if Mr Dow was willing the State Agent should take Jim ——— (naming a well known Portland rumseller) as his partner The question was not answered.

Resolutions were adopted reaffirming the expression of the Grand Lodge at its session in 1874 adopting the report of the Committee on Liquor Agencies as presented by Rev D B Randall Owing to the length of the report [illegible] corporated in the resolution we are obliged to defer publishing the full text until to-morrow It substantially declares that [illegible] in the interests of public morals [illegible] use of intoxicating liquors cannot be dispensed with that it is still best to [illegible] direct [illegible] [illegible] control that in the present state of scientific knowledge a substitute has been found for alcohol for various legitimate uses and that the continuance of the Maine Law is dependent upon the wise provision of the agencies for furnishing alcoholic liquors for proper purposes The report says

We cannot too strongly express our views of the practice of certain temperance [illegible] and temperance lecturers [illegible] who [illegible] the system of agencies and laboring to have them abolished, join with the enemies of temperance in their crusade against the Maine Law We have been in this regard wounded in the house of our friends, and our enemies have been emboldened in their attacks upon the prohibitory law

The report which treats the subject of agencies very fully and clearly will be printed in full to-morrow

After the adoption of the resolutions, E A Sawyer the oldest Past G W C T present was called to the chair and the officers-elect were installed with the beautiful and impressive ceremonies prescribed for such occasions and immediately assumed their respective positions and duties

H A Shorey, the G W C T was called upon and made a pleasing address returning thanks for the newly-conferred honor

A J Potter, from the Committee on place of meeting for next session reported a proposal from Belfast and it was decided that the semi-annual session of the Lodge should be held at that place in October

The Committee on State Police appointed at the semi-annual session at Dover last October reported that it was inexpedient to press that matter, as the proposition to re-establish the State Police in Maine seemed to be regarded unfavorably Adopted

At this point a unanimous vote of thanks was returned to Hon Joshua Nye for his labors in the cause of temperance the past year, Mr Nye responded briefly He spoke in terms of praise of W. F Morrell, formerly Grand Worthy Secretary, and moved that the Grand Council be instructed to present to Mr. Morrell a R. W. G. L. regalia, which was adopted

The G. W. C. T. was empowered to appoint the regular standing committees, and publish the same in the Grand Lodge Journal [illegible]

The remainder of the session was occupied in attention to unimportant matters, and at half past 5 the Lodge adjourned to meet at Belfast in October [illegible]

R. Chase, B F Fernald and E A Reed, Esqs Hearty responses were made by Messrs, Greene and Greenwood, and cheers were given for them and their temperance house Since this movement it is noted that the hotels from Mattawamkeag to Lincoln have suddenly become temperance houses —Sylvan Lodge has now a membership of seventy several accessions having been made of late —The river is open at Winn and the Mattawamkeag at Mattawamkeag —I hear that a party of river-drivers have gone up river to start a drive for Palmer & Johnson —The [illegible] has broken out at Winn and a match is contemplated at an early day — Alex McLain, Deputy Sheriff for Penobscot and Aroostook counties has removed to Mattawamkeag, and occupies the Grand House on Webb Hill He signalized his advent by spilling some liquor seized of Ed Wyman last fall

MAINE STATE COLLEGE

Meeting of the Trustees at Orono, Yesterday

The annual spring meeting of the Trustees of the State College of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts was held at Orono yesterday President Coburn and Messrs Oak Dike Wingate and Hicks being in attendance Letters were read from absent members

It was a matter of grave consideration how the appropriation of $10 000 made by the last Legislature could be made to [illegible] the necessities of the institution during the present year Of the appropriation $5,000 must be devoted to salaries of the faculty to make up the deficit in the $12,000 annually required for this purpose On the buildings and their contents is an insurance of $37 000 divided among five or six companies and the premiums amounting to $1,500, must be paid from the appropriation

There will be some radical changes in the methods pursued in the culture of the experimental agricultural fields [illegible] Mr Farrington Farm Superintendent will continue his duties as Agricultural Professor with an assistant on the farm Mr Hillebrown [illegible] has been made superintendent of the college buildings

The Trustees considered a large number of matters and did [illegible] considerable business They found the college in a flourishing condition and affairs generally satisfactory

It is understood that Mr Oak who has been a Trustee for eight years and whose term expires within a few days positively declines renomination [illegible] [illegible] to the Institution and should he persist in declining, it will be hard to fill the vacancy

Ex Gov Coburn and some of the other Trustees returned to Bangor in the evening afterwards passing the night at the Bangor House

LEXINGTON.

BY OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

Slowly the mist o'er the meadow was creeping,
Bright on the dewy buds glistened the sun,
When from his couch, while his children were sleeping,
Rose the bold rebel and shouldered his gun.
Waving her golden veil
Over the silent dale,
Blithe looked the Morning on cottage and spire;
Hushed was his parting sigh,
While from his noble eye
Flashed the last sparkle of liberty's fire.

On the smooth green where the fresh leaf is springing
Calmly the first-born of glory have met,
Hark! the death-volley around them is ringing!
Look! with their life-blood the young grass is wet!
Faint is the feeble breath,
Murmuring low in death,
"Tell to our sons how their fathers have died,"
Nerveless the iron hand,
Raised for its native land,
Lies by the weapon that gleams at his side.

Over the hill-sides the wild knell is tolling,
From their far hamlets the yeomanry come,
As through the storm-clouds the thunder-burst rolling
Circles the beat of the mustering drum.
Fast on the soldier's path
Darken the waves of wrath,
Long have they gathered and loud shall they fall,
Red glares the musket's flash,
Sharp rings the rifle's crash,
Blazing and clanging from thicket and wall.

Gaily the plume of the horseman was dancing,
Never to shadow his cold brow again,
Proudly at morning the war-steed was prancing,
Reeking and panting he droops on the rein;
Pale is the lip of scorn,
Voiceless the trumpet horn,
Torn is the silken fringed red cross on high,
Many a belted breast
Low on the turf shall rest,
Ere the dark hunters the herd have passed by.

Snow-girdled crags where the hoarse wind is raving,
Rocks where the weary floods murmur and wail,
Wilds where the fern by the furrow is waving,
Reeled with the echoes that rode on the gale;
Far as the tempest thrills
Over the darkened hills,
Far as the sunshine streams over the plain,
Roused by the tyrant band,
Woke all the mighty land,
Girded for battle, from mountain to main.

Green be the graves where her martyrs are lying!
Shroudless and tombless they sunk to their rest,
While o'er their ashes the starry fold flying
Wraps the proud eagle they roused from his nest.
Born on the northern pine,
Long o'er the foaming brine,
Spread her broad banner to storm and to sun,
Heaven keep her ever free,
Wide as o'er land and sea
Floats the fair emblem her heroes have won.

"NOBODY BUT JANE ROSSITUR."

[Concluded.]

"To take her little hand and kiss it," he said. "Ah! I don't wonder. I have experienced the same temptation myself, though it was not Miss Rossitur who tempted me; and I suppose I ought to blush at the confession, since the days of roseate youth are past for me."

"It is a temptation that is hard to resist," said Tyrrel, ingenuously, and he even sighed slightly, for he was by no means blind to certain difficulties that appeared in his path now and then, and puzzled him greatly. He was not sufficiently conscious of his own importance to see that they only meant that Jane Rossitur was a very sensible, sensitive, proud young woman, and knew her place.

There came a time, however, when he received a suggestion at least. This was on the night of Marjorie's birthday. Marjorie's birthday was celebrated with great pomp and ceremony, and always had been. In her childhood it had been her fête day, of which she was the small heroine, and upon which happy occurrence fabulous dolls and such gilded books and numerous stores of bonbons were brought to light. In these days it was pretty much the same thing, but the gifts were more imposing, the birthday party was not over and the guests in bed at twelve, and the cake was not the great attraction of the festivities. Marjorie had her party on this occasion, and the usual gifts were laid at her charming feet with the usual lavishness, and she had her wonderful birthday toilet, which almost made a young goddess of her, and in the fullness of her heart she gave Jane Rossitur a very pretty dress indeed, and gave it with a very pretty, affectionate speech. And in this dress Jane Rossitur made her appearance, and wakened in Tyrrel new enthusiasm. The stuff of which the costume was made was of India manufacture. It was thin silken gauze, black, and with a fanciful figure embroidered upon it with gold thread. It floated like a dusky cloud, and it had an odor of strange flowers and fragrant woods, and with a bouquet of scarlet and white in her hand, and a trail of some scarlet-budded vine in her hair, Jane Rossitur looked even less like the generality of girls than usual.

"You are looking very well indeed, Jane," commented old Mrs. Marchmont. "That Indian gauze was a happy thought of Marjorie's. It seems to suit you exactly. She said it would the moment she caught sight of it lying in my trunk. My brother Felix brought it from Madras years ago, and there has never been a complexion among us that it was precisely the thing for." And yet notwithstanding this gracious praise, and the fact that she must have known the justice of it herself, Tyrrel had a fancy that Jane did not look quite as bright this evening as was customary with her. When on first seeing him she looked up and smiled and nodded, he imagined that there was a sort of shadow in her eyes, and amidst all the gayety of the festivities, the dancing and music and general high spirits, this little shadow was there still, though she was evidently doing her best to add to the entertainment of the guests. The gayety of said festivities was at its height when the dowager stopped Marjorie on her way across the room, with a question.

"Where is Jane?" she asked.

"I am not sure," Marjorie answered, "but I fancy she is somewhere with Mr. Tyrrel, grandmamma."

"With Mr. Tyrrel! It really appears to me that she is very fond of Mr. Tyrrel's society of late. It does not look well."

"Ah! grandmamma," said Marjorie, opening her pretty eyes and blushing most incomprehensibly, "I am sure it is Mr. Tyrrel who is fond of her society. I have thought so often. And—why should it not look well?"

"My dear," returned the dowager grandly, "you don't understand. You know nothing of the world; but Jane Rossitur ought to have more sense. You are a child."

"I am a year older than Jane, grandmamma, and Jane is twenty, though, of course, I know Jane is far more clever than I can ever hope to be. Jane is very clever" (naively.)

"My dear, that is nonsense" (majestically.) "Run away to your dancing; but if you see Jane, send her to me!"

If she had known the whole truth, it is likely that she would have been even less pleased than she was. She was not the first person who had missed Jane Rossitur from the bright throng. Mr. Steven Tyrrel had missed her first and having missed her, had, with his usual ingenuous impulsiveness, gone to look for her. He made his way through several rooms below without finding her, and thought of the library, which had not been thrown open to the guests. If, as he fancied, she was a little depressed and out of spirits, she might have run up stairs to have a few quiet moments in the library. So insinuated himself up the staircase, where dangerous young women, whose intentions were strictly businesslike, sat in picturesque poses, ostensibly because it was so nice and cool, really for private reasons of their own, which might include the one that a pretty girl, sitting upon a low unconventional seat in a quiet nook, and lifting her eyes to meet a tall companion's is ten times more effective than a young lady in a crowd who can scarcely venture to be charmingly confidential at all, for fear of scathing observations of Mrs. Grundy, who have been blooming as wall-flowers all through the evening's entertainment.

Opening the door of the library, Tyrrel found what he was in search of, and found something more too. There was no light in the room but moonlight, and the moonlight, streaming in through the window, fell softly upon the gold and black drapery of a small figure crouching rather desolately and suggestively in a large cushioned chair, and hiding its face upon the arm.

Jane Rossitur looked up quickly. She made a very transparent effort to recover herself. She had no fancy for being detected in any self-indulgent weakness.

"Oh, its you, Mr. Tyrrel," she said, rising in a moment. "I suppose I am wanted, and Mrs. Marchmont sent you to look for me. I was a little tired, and came here to rest in the dark."

Tyrrel came to her side in positive trepidation. She stood up, pretending to smile at him coolly, but the moonlight convicted her. There were tears glistening upon her cheeks and lashes. He could not stand it at all, and her proud effort to seem careless made it all the worse.

"Miss Rossitur," he said, with a rueful solemnity that was half reproachful, "you have been—yes you have been crying."

This accusation, made in such an unexpected manner, had an odd effect upon Jane Rossitur. With the moisture still undried upon her cheeks, she laughed—laughed in defiance of it—but it was a queer, short, hysterical little laugh. It must be admitted, and the next moment she found it necessary to dash away a fresh drop with her hand.

"Crying!" she answered. "Well, yes; but you might have pretended not to know. Girls cry for everything; I think we like it. I may have been crying because my dress was not becoming."

"But you could not have been" (with all the enthusiasm of inexperience); "you must know how—how beautiful it makes you."

"Beautiful!" she echoed, her laugh a dubious one again. "You have been talking to Marjorie, Mr. Tyrrel."

"No," he protested; "I do not say such things to Miss Marchmont."

"Then" (rather curtly) "don't say them to me."

He was dumbfounded. He had never seen her in so strange a mood before. She was excited and unstrung, and her voice trembled even as she made this abrupt speech. And yet he could not see how he had hurt her.

"I beg pardon," he said, humbly; and then she surprised him more than ever, for she sat down in her chair again suddenly, and he saw the tears running down her cheeks.

"I do not know what you think of me," she exclaimed, "and I can not say I do not care for I do care. You are always so good to me that I care very much. Please give me credit for not always being so foolish. I can scarcely say how it happens that I am so nervous to-night. Yes, I can," she broke out vehemently, "and I will tell you, and try to shame myself. It is not that I am nervous; it is—it is all envy."

"Envy!" more bewildered and disturbed still.

"Yes, envy. I am envious, and it makes me wretched. You do not know how wicked we women can be sometimes. I despise myself when I think of it, but I am envious of Marjorie, who is the best friend I have."

She clasped her hands upon the chair arm and looked up at him quite appealingly.

"Don't answer me," she said. "Just let me tell you. I want to tell somebody who will not be to hard upon me. She is so pretty, you see. She always has been so pretty and bright and good and rich. She has every thing fortune can bring, and it is so natural that people should fall down and worship before her. I do not think she has a fault, she is unlike less fortunate people even in that. She has been adored and caressed and admired since she was a day old, and yet it has not spoiled her. It would have been the ruin of me. And all to-day I have been watching her and admiring her and seeing others admire her, until I could not help thinking it was scarcely fair that she should have every thing and I nothing. I am not pretty or rich, and I am sure I am not good. I not even very respectable. I am not liked very much by any body. I am nobody but Jane Rossitur."

As I have already said, he had been just drifting into an easy, summery sort of affection for Marjorie, when Jane Rossitur crossed his path and stopped him, but I am afraid that I must confess that even had this affection been a stronger sentiment than it was, he could hardly have met Jane Rossitur's penitent, uplifted eyes at this moment unmoved. He had actually fallen madly in love with the girl, and was prepared to do any thing unexpected and impassioned. "Nobody but Jane Rossitur!" He made a quick step toward her, flinging out both his dark, slight, nervous hands in a strange, graceful gesture of appeal, his eyes burning, and how soon all might have been over there is no knowing; but just as he moved, the door was pushed open, and Jane moved too.

"Jane," said an incisive old voice. "Yes, you are here. My dear, I want you down stairs." The dowager had come to find them.

When Jane reappeared in the dancing-room, Marjorie was the first to see her and Marjorie's face fell.

"Oh," she exclaimed, sotto voce. "How sorry I am!"

"Sorry?" repeated the ubiquitous Ruysland. "And why?"

The brown eyes dropped in some pretty confusion. "I am sorry that I let grandmamma leave the room. If I had only known in time!"

Ruysland looked amused but mystified. "May I ask—" he began.

"Ah," said Marjorie, "don't you see I am afraid she has spoiled it all? Mr. Tyrrel and Jane was together in the library."

He was a daring fellow, this Ruysland. A light flashed into his eyes as he bent over her.

"What!" he said, "are you so generous, Marjorie?"

"Generous!" she echoed. "Why should you call me generous?"

"I thought," he ventured—"I thought that the prince was for the princess only; and here I find him bestowing his princely smiles upon a lesser light, and the princess deigns to look on and smile."

"I," faltered the royal young person—"I—you have made a mistake. I do not want the prince, Mr. Ruysland thank you. It is you who are generous to give him to me without asking his consent." But though she spoke almost proudly, she did not raise her eyes, but kept them down, as if she rather feared to trust herself.

It was very odd, thought Tyrrel, that Jane's time was so fully occupied during the next few days. He could not get a word with her unless in Mrs. Marchmont's presence. The old lady seemed always near her, and always on the point of giving her something to do. Jane herself was grave and silent. Tyrrel even found her a little unresponsive. She seemed to hold herself under restraint, and kept her eyes fixed upon her work whenever it was possible. Certainly she was changed from the impetuous frank creature she had been during that brief interview in the library. Tyrrel grew restive and dissatisfied. He wanted to see her in such a warm and girlish mood again; he wanted to finish what he had begun, and there was always that majestic old hostess between them. So it went on for a week, and then one morning at breakfast Mrs. Marchmont spoke to the girl across the table, with a gracious air.

"As you are going to-day, Jane," she said, "you had better not tire yourself with packing. Barnet will attend to your things. You will be tired enough by the time you reach your journey's end."

"To-day!" exclaimed Marjorie. "How is it you did not tell me, Jane? What a mysterious way of doing things, grandmamma!" And her face wore a pretty look of surprised vexation.

"Mrs. Maxwell's letter only reached us by this morning's delivery," said Mrs. Marchmont. "They have been called away unexpectedly, and she wished Jane to accompany them, so there is no time to lose."

Jane said nothing. She drank her coffee composedly, and after breakfast disappeared immediately, thereby driving Tyrrel to the verge of distraction. She might be going to the other end of the world with these people—and to-day! If she went without giving him the opportunity to speak, he felt that he should never forgive Mrs. Marchmont, for he should be sure the fault was hers, though he could not have told why. He was standing by the window, staring out of the dull sky, and raging inwardly, when a hand touched his shoulder lightly. It was no less a person than pretty Marjorie, with her cheeks on fire.

"Mr. Tyrrel," she said, softly, but in a great hurry, "Jane has gone out to walk on the beach. She can not have gone far." And having made this significant remark, this odd young beauty beat a retreat that looked as if she was frightened.

Ten minutes after, Mr. Tyrrel had made his way along the shore to a certain corner where a certain boat was turned upside down, and a young person was setting on it alone, and gazing absently seaward. This young person recognized him with a start when he stood close by her.

"You almost frightened me," she said, smiling.

"You have quite frightened me," he answered, impulsively. "What does this mean?"

She still smiled, but not bravely. He looked down at her in such piteous reproach.

"Nothing new," she answered. "I have only found another situation, and am going to Lausanne for a few years."

There was a full minute's silence, in which he gazed down at her, and she pretended to be occupied with the fringe of her shawl. Then suddenly he sat down by her side and caught both her hands at once.

"Janie," he said, and the little word sounded quite passionate. The rare color on her fine, dark skin deepened to coral tint. Perhaps nobody never made a diminutive of her name before. "Janie" was an actual revealing.

"Well," she said, her voice belying the willfulness of her words, "What do you want?"

"A great deal," he answered—"every thing; love and happiness, you, Janie and nothing less, dear."

It was so impassioned and tender that she was overcome. She was a proud young woman, and had been very determined to hold herself aloof at the outset. She had rebelled against the kindness, and had once or twice tried not to be agreeable; but he had fallen in love with her, nevertheless. In love with her—nobody but Jane Rossitur. She could no more have doubted him than she could have doubted that her own heart was beating.

"I thought it was Marjorie," she whispered. "It ought to have been Marjorie."

"It is you," he cried, "you only." And he lifted her hands and kissed them eagerly again and again. "Janie, let me see your eyes."

When they returned home Jane had a marvel of a West Indian ring on her finger, and Tyrrel marched at once into the parlor to have an interview with old Mrs. Marchmont. Jane went up to her bedroom, and in ten minutes Marjorie came knocking at the door. When it was opened to her, she stood on the threshold radiant—almost more radiant than one would have fancied she need be.

"Come in," said Jane, tingling all over. She came in, and gave Jane a gentle yet half-excited embrace.

"You are not going to Lausanne?" she said.

"No, I think not."

"Oh, Jane, what—what a darling you are!"

And the next minute Jane found herself seated on a chair, with the princess at her feet, and the blonde head hidden upon her lap.

"He has been in love with you from the first moment he saw you," Marjorie was saying, "and I shall always like him for it. I was afraid at the very beginning, before you came, that—at least not that, exactly, but—Well, you know how grandmamma sets her mind upon a thing, Jane, and—and I did not want him to—"

"Did not want him to do what, dear?" interposed Jane, a faint light breaking in upon her.

"I," faltered Marjorie—"I have always been fond of—of Mr Ruysland, but he thought that Mr. Tyrrel might make me care for him in the end, and I was half afraid of grandmamma, and now you have made it all easy. Last night Mr. Ruysland proposed to me, and I said yes, Jane."

Mrs. Marchmont received two shocks that day, but she was too thoroughly a well-bred and well-poised old dowager not to bear them with dignity when they came.

"You have disappointed me, Marjorie, my dear," she said to the royal young culprit, in her most majestic manner, "but I suppose old people must make up their minds to being disappointed by the young. You must marry whom you please, of course. The days of forced matches are over."

"Oh, grandmamma dear," cried Marjorie, in her sweetest tone of appeal, "you are not angry with me? Sidney—"

"Don't call him 'Sidney' before me yet, my love," was the stately reply. "It is not pleasant to me. But you may kiss me; and I am not angry, only disappointed."

But she never quite forgave Jane Rossitur, even after the young woman was Jane Tyrrel, and had ripened into a social power, and was unanimously voted the most bewitching and unique young woman of her day.—[Harper's Magazine.

MRS. PARTINGTON.

Mrs. Partington is considered a mythical person "evolved" from the brain of Mr Shillaber, but her counterparts are often found in real life. One of these ladies was overheard at an evening assembly speaking in high praise of a pretty girl just passing.

"Why, she is a perfect paragram of a young lady!"

"I think you mean parallelogram; do you not?" suggested the waggish gentleman addressed.

"I said parallelogram, Mr. ———," exclaimed the lady, with a combination of dignity and indignation impossible to describe.

"Do you intend to masticate your house?" inquired a Western lady of a friend of mine who was building. He was a critical, cultured New Englander, as exact as witty. What a droll look came over his face as he answered:

"My wife says I eat like an anaconda, and I am blessed with the digestion of an ostrich, but, really, madam, I don't think I could manage my three-story brick."

This makes me think of Leigh Hunt's reply (not at all malaprop) to a lady who said to him at dinner:

"Mr. Hunt, won't you venture on an orange?"

"I would most gladly, dear madam, only I'm afraid I should tumble off."

But to keep to our theme. A lady visiting Washington for the first time sent word to friends at home that she was dreadfully disappointed; she meant to have got an Indian Bureau for Jennie's room, but there weren't any to be had; and that she was so busy shampooing a young lady from one place to another that she had no time to write letters.

A rather old girl (who had been lured to California by the cheering information that she was sure to marry there) laid siege to a wealthy widower, who at first showed signs of succumbing, but finally resisted the attack. As is usual with women who are feeling intensely disappointed, she "didn't care, no, not one bit." And she exclaimed, half sobbing, to a bosom friend:

"Why, I wouldn't be hired to marry him, hateful old thing! I wouldn't take him, not if he was a perfect Venus." As money was his chief charm, we suppose she meant Croesus.—"Bric-a-Brac," Scribner for May.

AMERICAN AND FOREIGN PATENTS

R. H. EDDY.

Solicitor of Patents.

For Inventions, Trade Marks and Designs,

No. 76 State St., opposite Kilby St., Boston

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure Patents in the United States, also in Great Britain, France, and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents executed on reasonable terms, with despatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent, and the usual great delay there are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Com'r of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges.
JOHN TAGGART."

LETTER CARRIERS

All letters are delivered free by carriers when addressed to street and number. People should inform their correspondents of above and have their letters addressed accordingly.

Persons having their address at the General Delivery can also have their letters sent, but it is much more convenient to have the street and number on, and they will be delivered earlier than if the same is put on at the office. Carriers make two deliveries daily, the first trip supplying the extremes of their routes.

Collections are made morning and evening in season for important mails—the down town boxes fifteen and the up town boxes thirty minutes before closing mails at the office.

Holidays and Sundays the Carriers' Window will be open for the delivery of letters from 8½ to 9½ A. M. Also open evenings from 8½ to 9 P. M.

Any irregularities in the Carriers' department should be reported to the office.

ENVELOPES.

No additional charge will be made for printing the name and request to return, across the end of the upper corner of the envelopes furnished by the Post Office Department, (samples of which may be seen at the Cashier's window,) when ordered in lots of not less than 500.

A request for the return of a letter to the writer, if unclaimed within thirty days, or less, written or printed, with the writer's name, post office and State, across the left end of the envelope, on the face side, will be complied with.

The public are earnestly recommended to procure stamped envelopes with printed return request, as the expense is less, and letters thus endorsed, if not delivered to the person addressed, are returned to the writer free of charge.

First class envelopes of above furnished at $32 80 per thousand.

Stamps cut from Stamped Envelopes cannot be used to prepay postage. The use of such stamps is punishable by a fine of fifty dollars.

Stamped Envelopes, spoiled in directing, are redeemed at this office.

DOMESTIC POSTAGE.

All Letters must be Prepaid—Letters for the Mails in the United States, three cents the half ounce or single rate. City letters, two cents half ounce or single rate.

NEWSPAPERS

After January 1st, 1875, all regular newspapers must be prepaid at the office of publication, at the rate of two cents per pound for each issue on weekly papers or those published oftener than once a week, less frequently than once a week, three cents. The same law applies to dealers.

County papers free, except to letter carrier offices, the papers coming to this office, if published to County, are subject to postage. Daily papers published in County, if delivered by carrier, one cent each, to be prepaid by stamps.

Postage to Canada—Same as in the States on letters and papers, prepayment compulsory, merchandise limited to 8 oz, postage 10 cents.

TRANSIENT PRINTED MATTER AND BOOKS AND MERCHANDISE

One cent an ounce, or fraction, weight limited to four pounds. Liquids, and anything that will injure mail excluded. All matter of this class must be wrapped, so as to be examined, without destroying wrappers.

ADVERTISED LETTERS

All letters remaining in the office are advertised on Monday of each week. If not claimed in one month thereafter, they are then forwarded to Washington.

MONEY ORDERS

Especial attention is called to the Money Order system, as a safe and cheap method of transmitting small sums through the mails. Orders are issued in sums of not more than fifty dollars. Larger amounts can be transmitted to the same person, at the same time, by additional orders.

RATES.

On orders not exceeding $10, 5 cents
" over $10 and not exceeding $20, 10 cents.
" over $20 and not exceeding $30, 15 cents.
" over $30 and not exceeding $40, 20 cents.
" over $40 and not exceeding $50, 25 cents.

Money Orders can also be obtained on England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, Switzerland and German States.

Never put Money in a Letter—Always Procure a Money Order

If money is to be remitted, a Postal Money Order should be obtained. If upon points where there is no Money Order Office, then the letter should be Registered. Money should never be enclosed in an ordinary letter.

Office Hours—From 8 A. M. to 6½ P. M.

REGISTRY DEPARTMENT.

All valuable letters should be Registered, unless a Money Order be obtained. Under the present system of Registration, letters are transmitted with perfect safety.

Letters may be Registered by paying postage in full, and a Registration fee in stamps, for—
United States, 8 cents
Great Britain and Ireland,
Canada, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, 5 cents
Germany and German Austrian Postal Union, embracing the German and Austrian States, 8 cents

WHIG AND COURIER.

1875—VOL. XLII.

Daily Established 1834 Weekly 1815,

BOUTELLE & BURR, Proprietors

C. A. BOUTELLE, Editor.

In announcing the Forty second Volume of this standard Newspaper, the Proprietors beg leave to state that during the past year they have incurred large expense in thoroughly refitting their establishment, and are determined to spare no effort in maintaining its high character as

The Leading Journal

EASTERN MAINE.

We have now one of the best appointed newspaper offices in the State, have made important additions to our Editorial, Reportorial and Correspondence corps and are in every way prepared to furnish our patrons with a

FIRST CLASS DAILY NEWSPAPER.

With facilities at our command we hope to make this favorite newspaper more interesting and acceptable during the coming year than ever before. Our connection with the ASSOCIATED PRESS, by which we receive the whole of their despatches by night and day, enables us to present in each issue

The Latest Telegraphic News from All Parts of the World.

In addition we shall be favored with special correspondents at important points, and shall furnish

Full Reports

of the proceedings of Congress, the State Legislature, meetings of Agricultural Societies and other public bodies, carefully corrected Financial and Market Reports, a reliable Shipping List, original and selected Stories and Poetry, a large amount of instructive and entertaining Miscellany, and a very full department of

News of This Section and the State.

In politics the paper will continue to advocate and uphold the principles of the Republican party, while claiming to be independent, in the highest and best sense of the word. While fearlessly outspoken in its treatment of all public questions and firmly maintaining what it believes to be right, it will avoid intolerance and make its appeals to the understanding rather than to prejudice. The year about to open will be fruitful of political events of important bearing upon the future of the country, and it will be our aim to keep our readers thoroughly informed, and to favor such measures and policy as will best promote the welfare of all the people. The great interests of

of Maine will receive special attention and all the influence of the paper will be exerted to stimulate the growth and prosperity of our beloved state. We rigidly exclude from our columns everything of an immoral tendency, avoid sensational matter and seek to make a thoroughly reliable paper which will be

A Welcome in Every Family Circle.

To advertisers our columns open one of the best fields in New England, our circulation being among the best classes of the people, and as

The Only Morning Daily East of the Kennebec.

this paper affords the principal medium of communication with a large and constantly increasing number of readers throughout Central and Eastern Maine. On the first of January the paper will appear in

An Entirely New Dress,

but with all its best features retained and with such improvements as we trust will insure an increase of that support which it has hitherto enjoyed.

TERMS, INVARIABLY IN ADVANCE

$8 per annum; $4 for 6 mos.; $2 for 3 mos.

The new postal law compelling prepayment of postage, imposes a heavy burden on the Publishers, but we have decided to make no advance upon our established subscription price, and will send the paper

POSTAGE FREE,

Clubbing with Magazines.

Subscribers will be furnished with either our Daily or Weekly paper and any of the favorite Periodicals or Magazines at their lowest Club rates.

In offering these advantageous terms we hope to be sustained by a liberal patronage.

District Court of the United States. District of Maine

In the matter of SIMEON F. SMITH, Bankrupt,
IN BANKRUPTCY

This is to give notice that a petition has been presented to the Court, this first day of January, 1875, by Simeon F. Smith, of Hampden, a bankrupt, praying that he may be decreed to have a full discharge from all his debts, provable under the Bankrupt Act, he dismissed, and upon reading said petition, this 10th day of February, 1875,

It is ordered by the Court that a hearing be had upon the same, on the first Monday of May, A. D. 1875, before the Court in Portland, in said District, at 10 o'clock A. M., and that the second meeting of the creditors of said Bankrupt be held before Charles Hamlin, Esq., Register, on the 28th day of April, 1875, and the third meeting of the same on the 28th day of April, 1875, and that notice thereof be published in the Bangor Daily Whig and Courier and the Piscataquis Observer, newspapers printed in said District, once a week for three successive weeks, and once in the weekly Bangor Courier, the last publication to be thirty days at least before the day of hearing, and that all creditors who have proved their debts and other persons in interest, may appear at said time and place, and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

WM. P. PREBLE,
Clerk of District Court for said District.
